Edna Murdoch, Richard Tyler, Marie Faire and Nancy Kline

"We are delighted to bring you our fourth Masterclass Series, designed to support your continued learning and professional development. We look forward to welcoming you to this special programme". Marie Faire & Paul King

Edna Murdoch - Working from a Transpersonal Perspective – 3 March 2011

During this day, you will gain a sense of what the transpersonal perspective can bring to your professional and personal life. We will explore some key concepts in Transpersonal work: Journey, Self, Emergence, Shadow and Mid-life Gateways.

For many people their journey through life is increasingly not only about their objectives at work, their role, promotion or career but is also about a calling to understand who they truly are and a calling to create a much broader, richer foundation and a sustaining vision for life in and beyond work.

How can we, as leaders, coaches and consultants ensure that we are ready to meet others where they are and explore fearlessly with them from both our head and heart? It is an undertaking that requires all the experience and understanding of a multi-dimensional conversation with ourselves and then with each other.

This Masterclass will explore personal identity, our life journey, meaning and purpose from a transpersonal perspective. It will marry contemporary insights with ancient wisdom. There will be a combination of conceptual and experiential learning, accessing body, mind and spirit. Maps, tools and techniques, experiential exercises as well as the archetypal language, will help you to stand at the interface between the outer world of work and our inner worlds.

Edna is founder of the Coaching Supervision Academy and an experienced Transpersonal Coach. In addition to coach training, she trained for 3 years in Transpersonal Psychology at the Centre for Transpersonal Psychology in London and for one year at the London Convivium for Archetypal Studies in London. Edna supervises executive and personal coaches and has particular expertise in coaching those in the mid-life-to-retirement bracket.

Richard Tyler – Everyday Trance - 23 June 2011

How many times during the day, do you think you enter some form of trance like state? Once, twice, maybe more? The answer is many times; your morning waking state, reading, driving, eating, watching an engrossing film, day dreaming....the list goes on.

No dancing around like a chicken or Elvis impersonations are necessary when experiencing the powerful phenomenon of trance. Unless of course you really fancy the idea of dancing around like a chicken?!

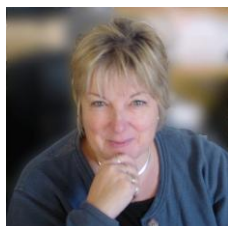

Your unconscious mind is a powerhouse of possibility and the moment you begin to harness that power you open up endless opportunities. Vast amounts of empirical research and data clearly shows how much you can achieve when you point your mind in the right direction, fuel it with progressive thoughts and unleash it.

This Masterclass will show you the power of entering trance. You will learn more about your own mind, how to enter self hypnosis and trance to create powerful changes within yourself. Discover how you can begin to run compelling and vivid movies deep within your mind.

Richard has been working within the field of NLP and clinical hypnotherapy for over 10 years. Along with his busy therapy practice, he is also a coach, speaker and trainer. He is an assessor on The Beyond Partnership NLP practitioner and Masters programmes. He refuses to do any Elvis or chicken impersonations, however much people ask him! However, Richard does believe that fun and laughter are critical in all the work that he does.

Marie Faire – Creating Your Own Models – 22 September 2011

In NLP we talk about modelling.... it is something we can do every day and do so just in a thought. "I wonder what Gandhi would say right now?"

"How Richard Branson would approach this situation?" If we were to ask these questions of ourselves in any given situation, with any given person as the exemplar, this is a form of modelling – with a healthy dollop of mind reading! This approach not only uses imagination and second position but speaks to the Gandhi and Branson, or whomever, within us.

What are your favourite bits of you and your least favourite bits of you? How can your least be more like your favourite? What are the models you already have internally, (self modelling), and the models outside of you to support this change? During this day we will explore and create some new models for ourselves and to share with others.

Marie is co-founder and a Director of The Beyond Partnership, and is lead trainer on our NLP Master Practitioner and Trainer Training. She has a MA in Management Learning and extensive training in humanistic psychology and group dynamics. She is a highly regarded presenter, facilitator and a qualified coach and coach supervisor with a reputation for helping to bring about change with individuals, teams and within organisations.

Nancy Kline – A Time To Think Masterclass - 15 December 2011

The quality of everything people do depends on the quality of the thinking they do first. It is our first responsibility, then, to create the perfect conditions for independent thinking. This expertise requires a re-definition of "expert" and a profound shift in the way we work with people.

They want us to be a Thinking Environment for them. They want us to ignite their minds. They want to think for themselves. They do not want us to think for them, however subtly or skilfully. Most importantly, it requires us to master the art of "generative attention," challenging much of the accepted wisdom of listening-based practice.

In this Masterclass we will explore the theory, practice and provenance of the Thinking Environment. We will experience Thinking Pairs and explore the power of Incisive Questions™, a process that replicates the human mind's own break-through process. We also will consider the latest research in neuroscience and its implications for understanding the Thinking Environment.

Nancy is President of Time To Think, an international leadership development and coaching company. She is also a published author and public speaker. Nancy created and pioneered the development of the theory and process called The Thinking Environment®. She is a Fellow of Ashridge College.
