

Leadership Lessons from Horse Whispering

24/25 June or 23/24 September 2010

"The principles of horse whispering and the horses we work with demonstrate in the most extraordinary way the effect of our communication and what it takes to be a leader worth following. The experience of this workshop receives consistently high feedback developing the capacity of participants in a profound and impactful way."

Marie Faire

All of us, as leaders face the challenge to create vision, motivation and inspiration, provide clear communication, have good awareness and be flexible and responsive. These are also the principles of horse whispering.

Often there is a gap between theory and practice, between what we know and what we do. In this 2-day residential programme you will discover where some of those gaps are and how to become a more effective leader and communicator.

Working with horses, participants come face to face with their personal challenges of leadership and communication. It is profound learning and development. Personal coaching, both in the ring and outside; observing others and group discussion, clarifies the principles and lessons for effective leadership in theory and in personal practice.

Please note that the work with horses is on the ground and no riding is involved.

"The amazing thing about this experience is that the horse, unlike people, does not have an axe to grind and does not have an alternative agenda; this means that relationships develop based on your leadership and mutual trust. The sceptics may think this has no relevance to the workplace but having participated I can assure you quite the opposite is true. The course is rich in examples that translate to the workplace and leading people".
